Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 13 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Heavy snow for parts of the north.

This Evening and Tonight:
A band of rain, sleet and snow affecting parts of Scotland and northern England, some heavy snowfall over hills. Rain affecting other parts of England and Wales, heavy at times. Cold in the north and east, milder in the southwest.

Thursday:
Rain, sleet and snow for parts of Scotland and northern England, with rain perhaps turning to snow across southern parts before dying out. Brighter in the far west. Mostly cold.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Many areas dry Friday. Rain and snow spreading west, crossing all parts on Saturday. Dry in the south, showers in the north later Saturday and through Sunday. Cold for most.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.